

JAKKALS JAG

BASICS and SECRETS

Many ask what the secrets are, but remember you can't learn the secrets without first knowing the BASICS! It is like going to school - you first go to a lower standard before going to high school it is the same principal.

It is vitally important to know the basics, and how to hunt a predator, the ground rules, what I suggest is to go with a person who knows what he is doing, and steal with your eyes, then practise on your own and then get into the calling thing, once you think you are doing it all right ask him to go with and observe you from start to finish and offer honest comments.

Then you can after that look at knowing secrets of the trade so to speak, remember having all the equipment does not mean success unless you know the basics and what to do, many people have the toys but lack the knowledge and do more damage that good with the equipment.

If I go away on a course, I will often let the guys hunt their way the first night and I will just look, unless they are totally ignorant then I will do it my way first off, this is why I say on courses you need to be taught stuff you need to know, and you need to know why you need to know it! It is of no use learning a method but not knowing why you use it!

This article is one of the finest articles you will find on the internet, much of my work is unmatched locally and this is a typical example, if you want a secret or two look at this article, you wont get a finer article anywhere and if you do tell me!

This is a deadly article, go by this (AFTER you know the basics) and you will do very well! (Just wait for it to download)

<http://www.africanpredator.com/secret.pdf>

Take note of everything I say here, follow this like the law and you will be successful – this is HOT!

Here is a few other interesting links to layouts you need to know to be successful.

http://www.africanpredator.com/jakkals_jag_plan.pdf

http://www.africanpredator.com/jackal_approach_angles.pdf

http://www.africanpredator.com/jackal_hunting_confusion_plan.pdf

HERE ARE A FEW WORDS CRITICAL TO SUCCESS:

- PATIENCE
- SET UP/ LAY OUT
- MOON CONDITION
- WEATHER
- DEAD GROUND
- CONFUSION
- CAMOUFLAGE / BAKKIE COVER
- STORY LINE
- OVERCALLING
- TWO CALLERS
- YEAR CYCLE
- VISION

In general you must know your predator, a jackal is a pack animal, he responds to other jackal sounds, so depending on the time of the year gooi vocal jackal sounds mixed with other sounds of interest. Don't use too much challenge in breeding time or you scare away last years dogs, but know the breeding cycle, this is an example – BUT you need to know the cycle and what music to play.

There is NO rule book when calling predators in general, you cannot tell what will happen but the basics are important, often a hunter will say if a jackal does this you do that, if you shoot one you do this etc etc, this is all hear say, simply a luck one hunter had one night, it WILL NOT work every time, if it did we would have killed every jackal in the Karoo by now, it is never so simple, BUT some things do work more often than none, and these tips in that article I mention here do work – they work well for me.

I offer top class courses in the FREE STATE every year – if you are keen to attend let me know, but generally getting to know the basics is the first part to success, then picking up secrets and taking it from that day on..... And remember just because you have the finest equipment wont help you achieve results if you don't know how to hunt and know the basics. COURSE MATERIAL
<http://www.africanpredator.com/websitecourse.pdf>

www.africanpredator.com