

FOXPRO SPITFIRE

Here are my personal comments on this caller, my opinion and a truthful one at that, so here it is! I will never give unfair comment on an item, and will never say a product is good if it isn't, as my reputation rides on that!

Here you can see the 18cm long caller, but it's loud if you need it to be, and light to carry also. It has 24 sounds.

Ok, the Spitfire, is very nice in these respects, the volume for me at night is great as I want a call to carry 450m at night maximum, if too loud a predator knows it's a bullshit story, so at 4 power this caller will travel to 550m easily with a light breeze, with no wind at night on volume 5 it will be more than adequate.

The caller has a TRIPOD mount underneath, a thread, VERY NICE! Say no more....

The caller is small, and is only 18 cm long, and has an extra speaker connection and an on and off switch. Perfect, what else do you need really!

Here is my caller with a camo cover, what I like about this caller is that it has NO aerial!

The 4 penlight battery's are in a compartment on the left side and this is a really no frills caller, just a basic call with 24 sounds that works well. The caller shows a green light when it is turned on.

It houses a sound memory card in the rear, so you can load more sounds on other cards and put the other card in the rear in the other cards place. It works like a digital camera, the same principal.

For $199-00 you can't want more really, it is value for money in every way; it has NO aerial and this I like, so you don't have to worry about an aerial getting bent or damaged in the bush or in a travel bag!

REMOTE

The remote, lights up sea greeny in colour, shows the sound you are playing, has a volume control 1-5, and a mute button, stop, send button and AUX button and obviously a SOUND button. Very simple and also a nice size that fits the hand well.( 9v).

As I mentioned before, the remote has NO aerial, so it is easier to transport and you do not have to worry about bending an aerial or something.

PRICING IN GENERAL;

The caller in SA costs to the general public $199-00, this is x the $ currency and as you know it changes every day in this country! But I have just bought a few callers and I can tell you this, if you bought them as a private person not a dealer, it would cost you the following, and lets work at 8 RAND to ONE Dollar. So, $199-00 translates to;

$199-00 x8 = R1, 600-00

$150-00 x8 = R1, 200-00 Post UPS 5 day service or

quicker on average

Import duty, taxes and Vol duty etc R600-00

Bank charges to transfer money from your bank. R200-00 on average.

Total for a $199-00 caller landed and delivered to your door = R3,600-00 ( Private person)

Generally speaking, in today's world in SA, what can you buy for a few thousand rand, the value of our money has got so bad that today if you break R500-00 what do you have to show for it? – not much!

Here you will buy a caller and you are done, you don't have to buy another one again. Get the sound list below and you are done.
